TREC and TALCB Announce New Online Domain Names

The Texas Real Estate Commission and the Texas Appraiser Licensing and Certification Board announce new Texas.gov domain names for their websites.

IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The Texas Real Estate Commission and the Texas Appraiser Licensing and Certification Board have updated their website domains. Effective immediately, the new website names are www.trec.texas.gov and www.talcb.texas.gov.

These “easy to remember” website addresses will be the permanent home for the agency’s websites consistent with the state of Texas government website standards for state agencies. The previous website addresses, www.trec.state.tx.us and www.talcb.state.tx.us, will remain operational for a year-long transition period.

In addition to the website domain name change, all of the agency’s email addresses have been updated to also reflect the new Texas.gov domain. All emails directed to staff members of the agency can be sent to firstname.lastname@trec.texas.gov or firstname.lastname@talcb.texas.gov.

The Texas Real Estate Commission and the Texas Appraiser Licensing and Certification Board continuously strive to improve communications and accessibility for license holders and for the public. These changes to the website domain and emails are two of many improvements planned for the coming year.

TREC and TALCB continue preparations for moving to the Stephen F Austin building in downtown Austin on July 15. Official announcement of new phone numbers will be made in connection with the move. News and important notices about the move are posted regularly on the agency’s updated website homepage at www.trec.texas.gov in the “Hot Topics” section.
