The Texas Real Estate Commission is pleased to announce the launch of a survey of license holders. In cooperation with the Texas A&M Real Estate Center, and hosted by the University of Houston, this important survey will offer the Commission insights into the status and needs of the agency's license holders. Going forward, the survey is scheduled to be updated every four years.

While the agency's laws and rules set requirements for obtaining and renewing each type of license, the agency needs to better understand who our license holders are and how they view their work environment, daily business, and professional practices. A survey of this type has not been conducted in over a decade. During that time, significant changes have directly affected developments in the real estate industry. The agency seeks to gather more information and gain additional perspective as it strives to improve customer service, increase license holder expertise, and enhance consumer protection.

The agency is charged to oversee the providers of real estate brokerage, appraisal, inspection, home warranty, timeshare and right-of-way services in Texas. The agency's mission is to protect the consumers of real estate services in Texas. We do this by upholding high standards in education, licensing, and regulation to ensure that the providers these services are both qualified and ethical, thereby safeguarding the public interest while also facilitating economic growth and opportunity across Texas. TREC can best accomplish this mission with collaboration from all of our license holders, and your cooperation with this survey is an important step in strengthening this collaboration.

The survey link is now live on the TREC website. The survey link is anonymous and will be available for about 30 days. The survey will take just 10 minutes to complete. TREC appreciates you making time to participate and look forward to the insights our license holders will provide.
